Lifeology Webinar Speakers:

Gaius J. Augustus is a multimedia science communicator specializing in creating infographics and animations to make science more visual. After formal training in fine arts and video production, Gaius shifted his focus to science. He received his Bachelor's of Science in integrative studies with a focus on chemistry and biology and his Ph.D. in cancer biology. Now, he is putting it all together, using visual storytelling to create accessible and engaging science experiences.

Paige Jarreau is the Director of Science Communication at Lifeology. She is a scientist turned storyteller who loves trying new forms and formats of science communication, but always looks for scientific evidence of what works best. Paige loves science but art brings her to life – she is into photography, circus arts, writing and poetry.

Doryan Algarra is the Head of Design at Lifeology. He is a designer and artist who loves creating experiences that are intuitive and impactful. Doryan is passionate about using art to educate and broaden perceptions.

Elaine Algarra is the Communications Manager at Lifeology. She is an art educator who loves using art to communicate ideas and deepen understanding. Storytelling gives us a format we are familiar with, and illustrations help us memorize what we learn. She loves creating art in various media, being a mom of twins, and visiting her family in England.
